YEOMEN PICNIC IN FULL SWING

Glorious Weather For The Provincial Four-Day Yeomen Picnic at Mirror Beach on Buffalo Lake—Campers Enjoy the Refreshing Breezes From The Water

After a month that was rainy from beginning to end the Yeomen picnic was greeted on Wednesday, July 1st, with one of the warmest days of the year, and up to the time of going to press Old Sol was still coming up each morning and doing a full day's work.

The local officers in charge of the picnic have been working for the past week and a dance pavilion, dining room, kitchen, booth, etc., are erected on the grounds to cater to the wants of the many that have been, and will be in attendance during the ten-day celebration now in progress.

The first day of the picnic, Wednesday, was a very busy one, the Mirror Boat Club held their regatta, besides the men's running races, a baseball and a football game.

After dinner W. C. MacCormack introduced the speakers of the day. The first speaker, W. F. Puffer, member for the Lacombe riding in the Provincial House was very brief in his remarks, and he was followed by Dr. Michael Clark, member in the Dominion House from the Red Deer constituency. Dr. Clark spoke of the appreciation of the name of the lodge holding the picnic and praised the Yeomen organization as one of the best of its kind for developing better citizens. He congratulated the American people present on the good feeling existing between Canada and the United States.

Both speakers expressed their appreciation at being invited to address the assembly, giving them, as it did, an opportunity to meet the people of this district.

The baseball game between Trochu and Mirror at 5:30 started in fine shape. Trochu won.

Tyson wound up like an eight-day clock ing the game in ninth innings. In the third Mirror landed on Edward's offerings and before the third man hit the dust they were seven runs to the good. Trochu came back in the next for two runs and the same in the sixth and then tied the score in the seventh innings with three runs, making it 7-7. They put the game on ice in the last by scoring four runs. For Mirror Russell pitched a 1 ball up to the fourth innings, having eight strike-outs to his credit. Cudahl was then put in the box, and in the ninth innings Iveson took a turn on the slab. It was in the third that Cudahl hit the sphere a wallop and centered around for a home run—the first of the season. Edwards felt on easy prey to the Mirror batsman, but after the disastrous third Tyson's curves were a puzzle to the local batsmen.

The football game in the evening between Nevis and Mirror resulted in a win for the red-shirted visitors by 2 goals to 1. In combination the victors easily had it over the local pig skin kickers. The Mirrorites showed lack of practice, but with that, they would give Nevis a hard run for the money.

Increase In Postage On Newspapers

Ottawa, Ont., June 26.—It is announced that in order to meet the cost of the increased subsidy to railways for the carrying of mails the post office department has decided to increase the postage on newspapers and periodicals. The present charge is one-quarter of a cent per copy. It is proposed in the future to charge one cent per copy for papers delivered by letter carriers. Where there is no letter carrier system the charge will be one-quarter of a cent per copy. A memorandum issued to the publishers under the authority of Hon. L. P. Pallister, postmaster-general, states: "The Press association has stated that there can be no disagreement as regards Canada having the lowest postage rate in the world and that there can be no room for difference of opinion as regards the great growth in the amount of newspapers carried by post. The association has admitted that the rate of postage on newspapers should be increased." "The postmaster general was desirous of reaching an agreement with the publishers and thought good could be accomplished if there was no doubt about the power to do so being vested in him. He was of the opinion that this power was already vested in the postmaster-general but to remove any doubt in regard to this and to make it so clear that there would be no question about it, he introduced a bill to this end at the recent session of parliament. This bill passed: the house of commons but was rejected by the senate. As a result of this action on the part of the senate, there is nothing now to do but to enforce the law as it stands on the statute books. This means that the present rate will prevail as heretofore on papers not delivered by letter carriers, but where letter carrier delivery is in operation a separate charge of not more than one cent, a copy will be made for the delivery of newspapers by carriers. This is under section 71 of the post office act which provides that an amount not exceeding one cent shall be paid for the delivery of each newspaper by carrier.

"As regards the rate the law is that this rate shall be for each pound weight or any fraction of a pound weight; that is, it must be paid for each copy. The law does not establish a bulk rate of postage and this question of rate for each copy must be met. The whole question of the conveyance of newspapers by post will now have to receive immediate consideration."

SURPRISED THE CAPTIVE.

An Incident That Aroused Varied Emotions.

In his "Reminiscences" General Basil W. Duke of the Confederate army tells of an incident he witnessed just after the close of the war:

"One morning about 6 o'clock I was sitting on the platform of a station waiting for my train when my attention was attracted to a squad of Federal soldiers who had evidently been on guard during the night, but were now getting their breakfast. They were well supplied with rations and seemed in high spirits.

"Just then I caught sight of a lank, hungry looking fellow who was unmistakably an ex-Confederate. He wore a ragged, faded grey jacket, with the buttons cut off, a pair of most dilapidated blue trousers and an old canvas hat, as empty as extra-sidereal space, hung around his neck. If he had eaten a square meal within six weeks his appearance would be decidedly different. He was partially hidden behind a cotton bale, whence he watched the Yankee spread with eyes that threatened to protrude across the intervening distance.

"About the time I saw him the 'Yanks' also caught sight of him. They held a short consultation; then one of them sprang up, started toward him and shouted out:

"Hello, rebel! Come this way; we want you!"

"For some reason—perhaps because I was sick and perhaps—convinced the idea that he wanted to arrest him, and my blood boiled with indignation at so totally an unprovoked act of oppression.

"The Yankee evidently entertained the same opinion, for he began a rapid retreat. A fresh summons, however, reinforced by a volley of threats, induced him to turn and approach the party, with an attempted display of demerit that was ludicrous compared with his lank retrograde manner.

"When he reached the spot where the 'grub' was the Yankee seized him, made him sit down and began to exert themselves to appease his manifest hunger. I have known some extraordinary feeders, but I honestly believe I have never seen any other two men eat as much as that fellow did. He kept at it steadily for not less than an hour, while the Yanks aided and encouraged him to the utmost. He drank six tin cups of coffee. He smoked violently, and I wondered how his frail garments stood the test.

"When at length he finished his repast crumpled his weatherbeaten old hat over his head and began to relax and rest him on his way rejoicing.

"It is scarcely necessary to say that my own feelings in regard to the incident had very materially changed during its progress."

The Gallery's Verdict.

In the old days the proprietor of a music hall always used to walk up and down the center aisle during the performance and restrain the exuberance of his patrons. One night a lady singer began a doubtful ballad in a still more doubtful voice, and at once received "the hint" from the gallery. "That'll do boys," said the proprietor. "Order, please! Give the artist a chance." But when the performance was finished he took off his hat, bowed to the gallery and remarked, "I beg pardon, you were quite right"—Lan-

Life.

In certain of its essential respects, a sandwich is rather a pleasant in itself, a comparatively successful of sundrum incidents. At times you are quite sure it is all a grey monkey. It begins to rise and spread itself like an Arabian night. And the unexpected breaks into a series of strange encounters, flashes of vivid color, bright serene personalities, low and low in the extreme of visibility. —Harper's Weekly.

FASHION AND MISERY.

A Pitiful Tragedy That Revealed an Inconspicuous Gamblination.

One of the standing subjects of humorous remarks among New York thespians is the weekly article on men's fashions, published over the nose of plume of Ben Brummel. In the progress of the theater of the action class.

Some people think Ben Brummel is a woman, while others believe him to be merely a haberdasher with a drug habit. However that may be, it is a reasonable supposition that no one wears any of the clothes that Ben Brummel writes about. It can't be done. If any man ever arrayed himself in one week's output of the Ben Brummel fashions and started down Broadway he'd land in jail or the psychopathic ward at Bellevue.

The case of Ben Brummel is merely funny. But here is a grim and pitiful little tragedy which is in a way related to it. In a small tenement on the eastern and poverty stricken end of Fifty-sixth street, the police found John Conwell and his old mother, dead from gas. The man was past middle age and unmarried. They lived alone, and he delighted the women's poor, old, drunkard. The neighbors said he used to cry hysterically when he would stagger home, stupefied with drink. At last he turned on the gas while still sleep and died with her.

He wore cotton overalls at the time of his death, and the few articles of his wearing apparel found in the apartment were worn and ragged. Yet the letters and papers which the police found in the apartment proved that he earned a livelihood for himself and his mother by writing articles on the latest fashions in men's dress. —New York Letter in Cincinnati Times-Star.

OLD FORT MARION.

America's Only Medieval Castle. A Landmark in St. Augustine.

For more than 200 years the significance was the Spanish capital of Florida, and the Florida of those days extended from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean. It was an impenetrable stronghold all of those years.

Old Fort Marion, begun in 1822 and finished in 1876, is the only medieval castle in America. It cost an enormous sum of money. Repeated heavy drafts of the builders caused the king of Spain to inquire if they would not build Fort Marion of gold dollars. The castle stands today in perfect condition, guarded by the United States government. The keeper conducts visitors through the castle, down the dungeons and shows you things in the walls where victims of Spanish oppression were chained to the walls. It is a very authentic, but it is that when the castle fell into the hands of the British two skeletons were found. One of these dungeons chained to the wall, the other a man, the other a woman. There is something amazing about these dungeons that cannot be described by word of mouth.

While there has been great improvement in old St. Augustine, the ancient landmarks have been preserved. The old city gate is intact; the Spanish monumental buildings of years old stand the tower of antiquities. Narrow streets characterized all Spanish towns of medieval times. There are streets in Old Fort Marion not more than ten or a dozen feet wide, each side lined with the same type of building that were the custom three or four centuries ago.

Wanted to Be Safe.

Tom Jackson had participated in a minor case from death, due to an accident which happened while he was crossing to Liverpool. It was, therefore, with much fear that he decided to return home.

Approaching the porter hurriedly at the last minute, he was told that he was too late for a stationroom. "The last one was just taken," announced that worthy. "Stationroom?" queried the frightened passenger. "Who wants a stationroom? Give me a reserved seat in a first-class." —Buffalo Express.

A Painful Process.

Little Present had been leaning out of an upstairs window. "Come away from the window, son," his father said sternly. "You might fall out and get a beating in your back like the cumbly you saw yesterday." The little boy was silent for a few minutes. Then he asked, "Is all the little cumbly have to fall out the window to get their bumps?" —New York Post.

Argued Too Long.

"Why did you permit yourself to be drawn into a long argument with your cousin?" asked the policeman. "A long dispute was just what I was trying to avoid when I called him a son-of-a-bitch," explained the man to the longest tail out. —Buffalo Express.

Too Soon and Too Late.

"What became of that play you wrote five years ago?" "The managers decided it was too daring to produce."

"Send it on stage."

"I did. They say it's too tame now."

—Pittsburgh Post.

What a Fright!

His Wife: But, dear, tell me why you want me photograph taken in this costume? Her Husband: No, that in thirty years you will look at it and say that I would like to say right now—Judge.

Wakening.

"So you think there is a lot of chance of selling Mr. Nukada an auto?" "Sure! He used to say he wished he had one, but he's arguing he can't afford it." —Puck.

Teacher Le-ves

On Wednesday afternoon of last week the ladies of the Mirror Library Club gave an afternoon tea in honor of Miss Higgins, who has been a teacher in the school here for the past year. On Thursday afternoon the little girls of the Junior department surprised Miss Higgins with a hand eiff shower at the home of Mrs. A. Oldring, and on Friday afternoon at the close of the school the scholars presented her with a purse. Miss Higgins during her stay in Mirror has done excellent work in the school, and the presentations and supper only show in a small sense the appreciation, respect in which she is held by the pupils and with those with whom she has been associated. She left on Monday for her home in Montreal, Que.

Boy Scouts' Camp

It is expected that at least 30 boys from all the country round will attend the camp at W. D. Cook's farm on Buffalo Lake, which commences on Monday next. ## Getting a "Thrip" in Farnham.

The traveler who is tired of conventional journeys and who is anxious to visit an "unspoiled" country where he can enjoy the comforts of civilization and at the same time taste some of the thrills and excitement attendant upon encounters with unspoiled nature, should certainly make a trip to Farnham, that wonderful island lying off the coast of China which passed into the possession of Japan in 1905.

Here, along the eastern coast, he will find picturesque towns with fine harbors and wharves, spacious streets and magnificent residences, schools and churches, electric light and ample water supply—all the luxuries, in fact, of a European city. He can journey comfortably by train from one place to another, passing through vast tea gardens and rice fields. Everything is civilized, orderly and safe. Yet only a few miles inland, among the mountains and forests, dwell fierce, unspoiled tribes, whose chief aim and ambition in life is to exterminate human beings.

Boisier's High Priced Autograph.

A good Boisier-Hessan autograph is sold by a French paper. One day Boisier arrived at Rennes' home with a smiling face, saying: "Now I'll tell you a piece of news that will humiliate you. My autograph has fetched a high price this morning." "That does not surprise me," Hessan said seriously. "And where did you hear that?" "I then turned out that at an auction a day or two before a Rennes autograph had been sold for 3 francs and a half—3 s. 6 d. 'Well," Hessan went on, "now let me tell you the reason. There were three fruits in the spelling of your letter, which is now true here on my writing table. A friend of mine was at the auction and made a slight bid for the letter after nothing the official cards that adorned your name. He brought it to me in order that I might return it to you instead of the receiving the public, which might get a bad impression of the accomplishments of members of the French academy."

Painless Death.

William Hunter, the renowned anatomist, who died in 1783, used to tell a friend in the last moments that if he were to write his own epitaph he would write how easy and pleasant a thing it was to die, and the late Professor Stewart, after an illness which had brought him very near to death, described the experience as being "that of interest and devoid of alarm."

On one occasion a well known public man described the act of dying as "a great adventure that must be gone through more interesting than setting out for the north pole. While few will agree with him, it is a great thing to know that when he has reached death of his two eyes and has taken his last breath, how much a dying person may appear to be suffering, he or she, immediately before death, can feel no pain whatsoever.—Pearson's.

Perseful.

An eminent tailor was once asked if he thought an "student" did as he went to Europe to study. He said that undoubtedly the atmosphere was more artistic in Europe than anywhere else, but that Paris as a city to study and work in was overrated.

To illustrate his meaning he said that a certain rich man's son after three years in Paris wrote home to his father:

"Dear Father—I have made up my mind to set to work. Please let me know at your earliest convenience whether it was painting, architecture or music I came to study."

TALE OF A TOWER

There it Stood, Yet it Had Never Been "Erected."

CLEVER EVASION OF THE LAW

The Corrusc Place Where John K. Graves Turned Out Bullets and Bullets and the Contract the Courts Declared Had Not Been Broken.

The late Senator Allison, whose home was at Duluth, Ia., thoroughly enjoyed humor and a good story. One day when in a reminiscent mood Mr. Allison narrated the following story, based upon facts, which is worth a place among tales extraordinary:

"Along about 1861, when the west was yet quite new, a number of ingenious men in Duluth conceived the idea of establishing a plant for the manufacture of shot and bullets. At the time there was no factory of that sort nearer than St. Louis, and with a lively demand for ammunition, it was deemed that a shot tower would pay like a California gold mine. The tower was built, the necessary machinery was put in at large expense and production began.

"For a time business was quite satisfactory; then demand slackened, and it soon became apparent that the enterprise would never develop any Standard Oil dividends. After a time some of the stockholders became disgusted with the whole business and practically decided to throw away their holdings.

"Among them was John K. Graves, who afterward became a power in western Iowa politics. Graves quietly bought up the stock as it was offered, getting practically all of it eventually on the basis of 5 or 10 cents on the dollar. Just what Graves wanted this stock for his associates in the venture could not figure out, but they did not know any sleep over that. They were flattered to death to get anything out of the dead enterprise. It had now been long money for some time.

"Soon after the war broke out, Graves finally saw his opportunity. War makes great quantities of bullets necessary, and he made preparations to supply them. He indicated in certain statements concerning his plans and purposes in the future of particular to St. Louis conversers, and his scheme worked admirably. Made of two weeks a man whom Graves knew to be a representative of the St. Louis shot tower company called upon him and in the course of the conversation brought up the subject of stock in the Duluth company. After several days of flirting and bantering Graves unloaded his entire holdings of stock at fifty cents on the dollar, realising over fifty cents on the dollar, realising a small fortune.

"By the terms of the agreement, however, Graves legally bound himself not to erect a shot tower within a hundred miles of Duluth within ten years. The representative of the St. Louis company had scarcely begun his right of Duluth, down the river, until Graves sent in an order for a complete equipment of machinery for a new shot making plant. While awaiting its arrival he indulged in a little surveying.

"Duluth he situated partly upon a bluff, and the land was owned by a country is extremely rocky. When wandering among the bluffs Graves came upon the excavation for a new shot making plant. While awaiting its arrival he indulged in a little surveying.
